GIVEN TO MISS LEE. Transfer of Washington Relics Taken

From the Arlington Estate. Richard Rathbun, assistant secretary of the National Museum, today transferred to Miss Mary Custis Lee, representing her brother, George William Custis Lee, those relics of George Washington which were removed from Arlington by United States authorities during the civil war. Miss Lee signed a receipt for the relics, and they are being prepared for shipment to a place which she is yet to designate. Among the more interesting of the articles are five pieces remaining from a set of china presented by General Lafayette to Mrs. Washington. Each piece is inscribed with the names of the original states and the Washington monogram. The china set, known as the Cincinnati set, presented by the Society of Cincinnati, is in the col-lection, as are also a small mahogany table which Mrs. Washington used as a tea table, an iron hall lantern and an inlaid knife case. The other relics comprise blankets, quilts, cutlery, chairs and domestic utensils.

The Washington collection in the museum is not seriously disturbed, the camp chest, uniforms, swords, pistols, etc., remaining. Miss Lee is uncertain as to the disposition to be made of the relics. A report has been circulated that they will finally repose in the Virginia Museum at Richmond, but Miss Lee says the rumor is unauthorized. There was no difficulty in identifying the articles removed from Arlington to the patent office and transferred in 1885 to the National Museum, each article thus transferred being clearly indicated in the cata-
